Navitas reveals new Chief Information Officer

Global education services provider Navitas is pleased to welcome Mr Mick Campbell to the position of Chief Information Officer.

Mick has significant experience in senior IT positions and has led IT functions across a range of business sectors, geographies, and cultures. He joins Navitas from the Cerebral Palsy Alliance, where he was responsible for formulating and executing IT strategy, digitising the organisation, and overseeing IT projects.

Previously Mick was CIO at Ramsay Health Care, a global hospital group of 60,000 employees and is ASX-listed. His work experience also includes time at Ashurst Lawyers, (previously Blake Dawson Waldron), PeopleSoft, and Westpac Financial Services in principal IT roles.

Mick is looking forward to stepping into the education sphere and leveraging the many available technologies to enhance education delivery and service, whilst taking on the challenges presented by an increasingly digitised knowledge-economy.

"The education sector is of vital importance to the Australian economy and there are many technological breakthroughs and opportunities for the industry to take advantage of. The education sphere is on the cusp of being transformed through digital technologies and I'm looking forward to exploring these to produce even better quality outcomes for Navitas students" he said.

Navitas Chief Executive Officer, Rod Jones, said Mick is a welcome addition to the team and his experience speaks for itself.

"Mick has a rich career covering many portfolios, and we are confident his strong knowledge of the IT sector will shine through in his work at Navitas," he said.

Mick holds a BSc in Computing Science, Mathematics and Statistics, and a BSc in Statistics (Diploma), both from the University of Glasgow.
